Abstract: Tony Li and Erin Zong met in Zibo, a city that blends history with modernity, where their love story began in 2020. At the time, Wenqi had just returned from his studies at the University of Glasgow and joined the Zibo Municipal Finance Bureau, while Erin had obtained her master's degree from Jilin University and started her career within the municipal government.

In this place, they have supported each other through the ups and downs of academic and daily life. Now, as doctoral students at Shandong University, their love and studies progress together. This October, they will enter into marriage, starting a new chapter in their lives. Their journey has been made possible by the support and encouragement of family and friends, making this wedding not only a testament to their love but also an important ceremony of gratitude.

As the ancient saying goes, "Holding your hand, I wish to grow old with you." For Tony Li and Erin Zong, their love marks the beginning of walking hand in hand into the future, with their hearts forever intertwined as warmly as the day they first met.
